Detailed Action

Claims 33-37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. While the present application has support for delay circuits and delaying them by times T, 2, and 3T (see top of page 6) and varying data sizes depending on banding positions (see the bottom of page 15), the specification does not support "....wherein each of a plurality of forming means forms images by a predetermined time difference according to the physical position of each of said plurality of image forming means." The language in quotes appears in the last limitations of claims 33 and 37.

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 33-37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kobayashi.

With respect to claims 33 and 37, Kobayashi teaches an image processing apparatus for performing a method comprising: rendering means (conversion unit 1) for performing a rending step of rending first color space data (RGB information) and second color space data (CMYK); a step of forming a plurality of images via plurality of image forming means (ink reservoirs CMYK from printer 27); whereby each of the image forming means, ink reservoirs, output the color ink according to an output timing according to Step 51 by means of output rending device 7 where for each coordinate X, Y a color value P at a predetermined rending time is assigned for that point. See col. 9, lines 1-6 for establishing the color P which consists of four different color image forming means.

Art Unit: 2626

With respect to claim 34, see figure 1 of Kobayashi.

With respect to claim 35, Kobayashi teaches conversion means 1 for converting the data into the first color space (RGB) into data in the second color space (CMYK) and wherein said image forming means (printer 27) forms an image based on one of data rendered in the second color space by said rendering means and data converted by said conversion means. See units 24-26 of figure 5 or element 6 of figure 1.

With respect to claim 36, Kobayashi teaches a ROP having a display. See col. 1, lines 20-27. The display displays the color space maps shown by figures 4a-4d. See also col. 6, lines 23-30 which teaches the interaction between the ROP and the conversion of the first and second color spaces.

3. Claims Allowed

Claims 1-4 and 7-9 are allowed for the reason the prior art does not teach or suggest in claimed combination, "... wherein said rendering means performs band mapping of data if band mapping is possible, and wherein, when band mapping is impossible in said rendering means, said apparatus informs a host computer to which said apparatus is connected that the band mapping is impossible.

Claim 10 is allowed for the reason the prior art does not teach or suggest, "... wherein said rendering step includes performing band mapping of data if band mapping is possible, and wherein, when band mapping is impossible in said rendering step, notification is sent to a host computer to which an apparatus performing said method is connected, the notification stating that the band mapping is impossible."

Claim 11 is allowed for the reason the prior art does not teach or suggest, "... wherein said rendering step includes performing band mapping of data if band mapping is possible, and wherein, when band mapping is impossible in said rendering step, notification is sent to a host computer to which an apparatus performing said method is connected, the notification stating that the band mapping is impossible."

Claims 31 and 32 are allowed for the reason the prior art does not teach or suggest in claimed combination, "... rendering means for acquiring the image data held in said holding means in units of colors by accessing said holding means via a bus, and generating rendering data... determining means for, when a format of the image data is RGB format, predicting the rendering time for generating the rendering data in the RGB format based on the load of bus for acquiring the image data in the RGB format in units of colors, and determining whether or not it is possible to generate the rendering data...wherein if it is determined by said determining means that it is not possible to generate the rendering data, an image in YMCK format is formed by demanding that the information processing apparatus transmits image data in YMCK format."
